

Solid Green

Go ahead, but make sure to:

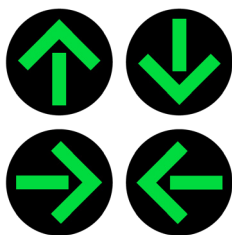

- Wait for the intersection to clear.
- Yield to emergency vehicles as required by law.
- Yield to pedestrians.

When you're turning left at a green light, yield to approaching vehicles. Oncoming traffic has the right-of-way. Pause in a place that gives you a clear view of approaching traffic, and then safely complete the turn when there is a break in traffic.

Flashing Green

You won't see a flashing green light in Washington state. However, you might see them in British Columbia, Canada, as warning that pedestrians are waiting to cross.

Green Arrow

Go in the direction of the arrow. A green arrow gives you the right-of-way to travel in that direction. There should be no oncoming vehicles, crossing traffic, or pedestrians while the arrow is green.
